

WELCOME TO THE 18TH ANNUAL

CONFERENCE ON CRIMES AGAINST WOMEN

I am honored to welcome you to the 18th annual Conference on Crimes Against Women (CCAW). In partnership with the Dallas Police, Genesis is committed to moving the needle on the way we all respond to crimes perpetrated against women. What began with a 2-day conference of 400 people has grown to become the largest conference of its kind in the country. Over 3,000 attendees from all 50 states and 7 foreign countries have convened to learn best practices to hold perpetrators accountable while providing justice for the victims.

For you who have previously attended the national Conference on Crimes Against Women, WELCOME BACK! If you are a first-time attendee, you are in for an amazing four days. There is nothing quite like the energy that comes from a ballroom of thousands of practitioners all coming together with one shared goal – to learn and share new tools and skills for working with and bringing justice to women who have experienced gender-based violence.

For 18 years, the Conference on Crimes Against Women has provided best practices and resources to system professionals to assist in their role to help end violence against women. CCAW has been recognized as the nation's leading training source on these types of crimes. And, as we open our new non-residential center, Genesis will be launching the National Training Center on Crimes Against Women. All CCAW attendees will be receiving information about ongoing year-round trainings as we continue to support you in your efforts to end violence against women.

Thank you for continuing to trust us to provide the most cutting-edge, timely education in the field. And thank you for what you do day in and day out. Please know you make a difference. YOU ARE OUR HEROES!

MISSION OF CCAW The mission of the Conference on Crimes Against Women (CCAW) is to provide a national platform to disseminate the highest level of training, information, and strategies to professionals who are responders and advocates to victims of the many and varied forms of crimes against women including domestic violence, human trafficking, sexual assault, and strangulation.

THE DALLAS POLICE DEPARTMENT is dedicated to protecting all Dallas citizens from crimes through its prevention, patrol, and investigative activities. With respect to the victimization of women, the Department has deployed significant resources to effectively investigate the full range of crimes that are committed against women. While all personnel share the responsibility to combat these crimes, the Department has specialized units that have the primary investigative responsibility for the investigation of domestic violence, protective order violations, stalking, sexual assault, registered sex offenders, trafficking, and homicide.

CCAW PROGRAMS

Check out what programs the Conference on Crimes Against Women has to offer!

With the opening of our new facility, we are thrilled to be launching the National Training Center on Crimes Against Women (NTCCAW). The NTCCAW is the next integral step in instituting the commitment that Genesis has made to raising awareness regarding the impact of gender-based violence, not just locally, but at the national level as well.

The National Training Center will bring the expert level training of the Conference on Crimes Against Women (CCAW) to practitioners and the community year-round. While the center will serve as an integral part of continuing the education of criminal justice professionals, it will also provide an opportunity to expand our reach to other disciplines such as healthcare and faith-based communities. Additionally, it will serve as a space for our state and national partners to host events. Equipped with state-of-the-art technology, the center will host both in-person and webcast events.

INSTITUTE FOR
COORDINATED COMMUNITY RESPONSE
Powered by Conference on Crimes Against Women

@instituteccr

The Institute for Coordinated Community Response (ICCR) works alongside rural communities to improve their collaborative, systemic responses to domestic violence. Since its inception in 2018, the Institute has worked with counties throughout Texas with plans to expand nationwide. Criminal justice practitioners from the rural community review current practices, learn from experts, and collaboratively implement changes to begin establishing an effective, sustainable Coordinated Community Response (CCR).

Another integral component of ICCR is training. ICCR training centers around the unique needs of rural communities nationally. This is accomplished by providing free e-courses, virtual roll call trainings, monthly webinars, and a two-day virtual conference; Collaborative Responses to Domestic Violence in Rural Communities (October 2-3, 2023).

2023 IGNITE AWARD WINNER

TULANE WOMEN'S PRISON PROJECT

The Women's Prison Project is a first-of-its-kind collaboration between Tulane's Domestic Violence and Criminal Justice Clinics. The program provides legal representation to criminalized survivors of intimate partner violence, sexual assault, and trafficking, with a particular focus on survivors charged or imprisoned after killing an abuser in self-defense or for having committed crimes under an abuser's coercion or duress. Clinic students get hands-on legal training and the women receive representation on their legal cases.

Domestic violence survivors interact with the criminal legal system not only as victims, but also as defendants. In fact, a majority of women in U.S. prisons attribute their incarceration to a history or context of abuse. The United States Department of Justice estimates that sixty-percent of incarcerated women are abuse survivors, and over a third were abused by an intimate partner. Historically, the legal system and the lawyers who work within it have failed to meaningfully address the role of intimate partner violence in assessing criminal culpability. The Project's work includes:

- Individual representation from pre-trial to post-conviction, parole, and clemency proceedings
- Training and education for criminal legal system professionals and the jailhouse lawyers tasked with assisting other incarcerated women with legal claims
- Consultation to defense attorneys representing survivors charged with or convicted of crimes relating to their abuse
- Policy work to improve legal protections for victims who are defendants in the criminal legal system

////////////////////// CONFERENCE ADJOURNS //////////////////////////////////////

MMIW TEXAS REMATRIATE RED DRESS PROCESSIONAL

MMIW Texas Rematriate is a grassroots organization that educates and advocates for the MMIW/P crisis, not only in Indian Country, but in urban areas such as Dallas-Fort Worth (DFW). They support families in finding their missing/murdered Indigenous relatives and bringing them home in spirit or in flesh.

The RED DRESS Processional symbolizes the women who have been lost due to violence. The dress MMIW Texas Rematriate leads showcases the color red, a color known to be sacred in many tribes. It is believed to transcend the physical world and call to those in the spirit world. During the processional, it is calling attention to those who have been missing or murdered.
